What problems are we helping to solve?

- The financial environment is evolving rapidly. It is important that textbooks present the most up-to-date information
- New Zealand's economy and financial dynamic is heavily influenced by the Reserve Bank of New Zealand. New Zealand business students need to understand the role of this institution.
- Without constant feedback, students can lose motivation. They like to know that the work they are putting in is paying off.

How are we addressing these needs?
